

Person Centered Planning: 024 Process

Independent facilitators can assist families during the SDP process. They can help create a person-centered plan (also known as a PCP). There are many ways of completing a person-centered plan, but all of them should identify the individual's hopes and dreams, identify what the individual likes and what they are good at, identify and set meaningful goals for their life, and choose the providers for the services and supports that will help them meet their goals. The person-centered plan should be presented at the IPP meeting with the service coordinator.

The person-centered plan is completed by the independent facilitator and is funded through NLACRC. NLACRC will fund up to $1,000.00 for the person-centered plan and will need to provide the service coordinator (CSC) with a copy of their independent facilitator certificate, a copy of the completed person-centered plan, and a copy of their invoice with details including the dates and hours utilized to complete the person-centered plan.

(link the DDS directive)

Identify hopes and dreams.

Identify what they like and what they're good at.

Identify and set meaningful goals for your life.

Choose who will provide services and supports to help meet their goals.